

Fortuity and Sentimental collections

Knurly elements (Fortuity)

Bringing what used to be a function-based surface treatment to the extrusion of the positive and negative space of the knurling process. Pushing the process to its limits reveals a new perception of the knurly shape. The resembling form is, therefore, a transformation of scale and material.

Strip elements (Sentimental)

Strip elements are designed as displays featuring elastic strips for presenting flat sentimental objects. The strip grid primarily acts as a divider for creating smaller spaces for objects to stand out on their own. Furthermore, they add a graphical and aesthetic quality to the element.
